Perspectives: Honor Roll of Donors

FIELD MUSEUM IS GRATEFUL to the friends listed in these pages for unlagging support of the Museum's programs. Your generosity in a year of economic uncertainty has been remarkable.

We are proud to display in this report the work of the Museum's four scientific illustrators, whose talents are important to the work of our curators. They capture specimen detail which the camera blurs. Zoriça Dabich, Zbigniew T. Jastrzębski, Clara R. Simpson, and Marlene Hill Werner are professional artists with broad backgrounds in drawing and painting and many years of experience in both fine art and natural history illustration. Although skilled in diverse media and familiar with many subject areas, each illustrator has refined several specialties. Ms. Dabich's are watercolor paintings of South American monkeys (opposite) and drawings of botanical subjects using a crow quill. Ms. Werner excels in the use of carbon dust and scratchboard techniques to depict fossils and other subjects. Line and stipple representations of zoological and paleontological specimens are Ms. Simpson's forte. Mr. Jastrzębski is known for his pencil or pen-and-ink stipple rendering of skeletal structures and for reconstructions of pottery from sherds found at archaeological sites. Scientific illustration is an exacting art which serves science. Nowhere is it practiced better than at Field Museum.
